Mary H. Gallagher Inherits 38-Acre Tract, "Pondsburg," At Laurel Bend

$5,000 PERSONAL ESTATE

Other Wills Are Probated At Office of Register of Wills In Doylestown

DOYLESTOWN, Mar. 29—A friend, Mary H. Gallagher, Bristol, R. D. No. 1, was bequeathed the $5,000 personal and $2,000 real estate holdings of Catherine F. McGee, of Bristol township. The bequest included a 38-acre tract, "Pondsburg," at Laurel Bend, Bristol township.

Two sons, Warren M. Cornell and Horace Stanley Cornell, will inherit the $1,000 personal and $3500 real estate holdings of their father, Wilmer W. Cornell, late Bucks county official and former Doylestown Borough Councilman, according to his will probated in the Register of Wills' office here.

The will was executed March 5, 1932, and contained a bequest for his wife, who died since the will was made but before he passed away at his home, February 25th. Wesley Bunting was named the executor.

Two sons, William H. and Ralph Besch, will inherit the $3,000 personal estate of Amanda E. Besch, Perkasie. The Perkasie Trust Company was named the executor.

With the exception of bequests of $300 to each of the grandchildren, the $7,000 personal estate of Lewis P. Satterthwaite, Newtown township, will be inherited by widow, Mary A. Satterthwaite. Following her death, three sons, Maurice C., William and Edward Satterthwaite, will be the heirs. Mary A. Satterthwaite and William Satterthwaite were named the executors.

The $500 personal and $3080 real estate holdings of Jacob Y. Moyer, Springfield township, will be inherited. Continued on Page Four

By-Laws Changes Broaden Scope of The Travel Club

Changes voted in the by-laws of The Travel Club yesterday afternoon, broaden the activities of that local women's club, the scope being such that civic activities will be included as well as cultural and social.

The proposed by-laws were read by Mrs. Emil Metzger, parliamentarian, at the suggestion of the president, Mrs. William DuHamel, when the club members gathered in the club home on Cedar street, and voted upon the various sections.

This session, purely a business one, was opened by the president reciting "Your Flag and My Flag," with the pledge of allegiance following. In the absence of Mrs. Russell DeLong, secretary, Mrs. Harry Neher read minutes of the last two meetings.

An investment of club funds arranged by the executive committee was approved by members, following announcement of such by Mrs. Frank Lehman.

Mrs. Richard T. Myers informed of progress of the play which will be staged on April 18th, with proceeds to be used for the Bristol Free Library. Mrs. Roy Tracy, chairman of the ticket committee, asked co-operation in sale of tickets.

The minds of the members were refreshed in regards to the club budget by Mrs. Lehman.

Attention of members to the proposed plan for dispatch of food and distribution of same to the small democracies of Europe, was called by Mrs. Muford Callahan. She told of the 27,000,000 people in those countries in dire need, facing starvation and death; and suggested that The Travel Club go on record as favoring a neutral commission to get the food to those in need. The proposed commission, fashioned after the Hoover commission which functioned at the time of World War I, will be aided by volunteer workers. The plan as suggested, stated Mrs. Callahan, would mean that the food would reach those for whom it was intended, with it being received and distributed in Europe by neutral organizations. The club went on record as approving the plan which will mean the amelioration of suffering among the millions of innocent people abroad.

Announcement was made of a meeting in the club home on the evening of April 17th, when a speaker will discuss "Union Now." This meeting will be open to the public.

Mrs. Earl H. Tomb was named as a mediator with state representatives to seek action on the beautification of the grounds surrounding Silver Lake.

A nominating committee named by the president includes Miss Mary J. Haines, Mrs. DeLong, and Mrs. Franklin K. Wallin.

Announcement was made by Mrs. DuHamel of an institute on social relations to be held at State College from June 23rd to 27th; also of an international relations institute planned for June at Beaver College, Jenkintown. The General Federation of Women's Clubs will convene in Atlantic City, May 19-24.

To Safeguard Against Factory Accident Hazards

The Bureau of Inspection of Pennsylvania Department of Labor and Industry, through its factory inspection service in this territory, is co-operating with a national committee for conservation of man power in defense industries, which has been set up by the U. S. Department of Labor. Local factory inspectors, under supervision of Frank X. O'Connor, with offices in Philadelphia, will do the detailed inspection for elimination of accident hazards in all plants engaged on defense contracts and sub-contracts.

Representing the National Committee will be special agents who are plant safety engineers, who have volunteered part-time service as consultants in this special safety drive. These appointments of agents were made by Walter W. Matthews, managing director of the Philadelphia Safety Council, who has been appointed eastern Pennsylvania chairman under the National Committee setup.

This special survey is entirely apart from activities of the state inspection bureau, which have, for some months, been especially directed to the elimination of hazards in defense industries, in order that there may be no unnecessary delays in production.

NEWPORTVILLE CHURCH OFFICIALLY ORGANIZED

Named "Newportville Community Church — Presbyterian"

RECEIVE 41 MEMBERS

NEWPORTVILLE, Mar. 29—Official organization of "Newportville Community Church — Presbyterian" took place last evening, when with the Rev. Jacob A. Long, Ph. D., executive secretary of the Presbytery of Philadelphia North, presiding, 41 people affiliated, either by letter or by affirmation of faith.

On this auspicious occasion, Dr. Long was named moderator of the session of the new church, formed from a nucleus of those who have been actively engaged in work of what has been known heretofore as the Newportville Church. C. Burnley White, Eddington, a most active worker in the church for number of years, together with Isaac S. H. Jones, Croydon, both members of Eddington Presbyterian Church, were named elders. Dr. Long, and Messrs. Jones and White thus comprise the provisional session of the new church.

The affairs of the Newportville Church have been of recent years under the oversight of the Board of National Missions of the Presbyterian Church.

Dr. Long presided at the meeting which marked the official organization, with Mr. White serving as clerk. The 41 joining the church included a number of young people.

In addressing the congregation, Dr. Long informed that the charter will remain open until after the Easter season, thus any joining in that period of time will become charter members. He welcomed each member into fellowship with the new church.

Messrs. White and Jones also spoke briefly, congratulating those interested in affairs of Newportville Church on this memorable occasion.

The congregational singing of "Blest Be the Tie That Binds," concluded the program, with benediction by the Rev. Mr. Long.

Break Ground For New Brewster Plant

JOHNSVILLE, Mar. 29—First spadeful of ground for the $2,000,000 assembly unit of the Brewster Aircraft Corporation was turned yesterday by James Work, founder and chairman of the company. The unit, first of a $10,000,000 project, will be in complete operation by July 15 and will turn out 35 planes a week.

William Tanner, chairman, of the Warminster Township Board of Supervisors, handed a common garden spade to Mark S. James, Acting Secretary of Commerce. James in turn handed the spade to Work, who turned the first ground as a bouquet of American Beauty roses floated earthward from a plane which roared across the 400-acre tract.

The ceremony marked the first time dirt has been turned for an industrial project in hitherto agricultural Warminster township.

Among those attending the ceremony were John L. M. Yardley, supervising engineer of the Defense Plant Corporation, Washington, D. C.; Captain E. J. Roller, commanding officer of the Netherlands East Indies Air Force; Captain Wadleigh Capehart, of the U. S. Navy; Colonel Charles Chamberlain and members of Chamber of Commerce groups from nearby communities.

The plant will be the largest assembly unit in the State and one of the six largest in the country. It will assemble planes sent here from the company's other plants in Newark and Long Island City.

"Blitzkrieg" On Yugoslavia Considered By Nazis

Berlin, Mar. 29—Germany will stage a military and air blitzkrieg against Yugoslavia unless Belgrade offers strong evidence of its good will within a few days, neutral quarters in Berlin predicted today.

"War clouds are gathering fast," these sources said, indicating that "patience" of the Reich will not last much beyond the beginning of next week.

Meanwhile, the Wilhelmstrasse this afternoon announced that the gathering crisis has become more intense and now offers little hope of peaceful settlement.

Proclaim State of Siege In Yugoslavia

London, Mar. 29—A state of siege has been proclaimed in Yugoslavia, according to a Reuters dispatch from Vichy, France, today.

The dispatch said the Yugoslavian people were informed of the state of siege by posters placed in the streets and by radio announcements.

It stated the Yugoslavian people were asked to obey orders issued by the army and halt any foreign elements which might take advantage of the situation to cause trouble.

Great Running Battle Between British and Italian Warships

London, Mar. 29—In one of the greatest running naval fights of the war, British warships and planes severely damaged one 35,000-ton Italian battleship and two destroyers of from 5,000 to 10,000 tons, the Admiralty announced today.

The damaged battleship was one of four Fascist capital ships of the Littorio class.

While RAF planes darted overhead and little Greek warships snapped at the Italians, the battle raged in the Eastern Mediterranean yesterday, apparently on the sea lane where transports are carrying British troops and supplies to Greece.

INJURED MOTORIST PLACED UNDER ARREST

Howard Wicand, Quakertown, Charged With Carrying A Firearm Without License

NOW IN THE HOSPITAL

DOYLESTOWN, Mar. 29—Charged with carrying firearms without a license, and with contempt of court and breach of probation, 28-year-old Howard Wicand, Quakertown rosiery worker, has been placed under arrest at the Doylestown Emergency Hospital, where he is recovering from a head injury received in an automobile accident Tuesday night.

County Probation Officer Horace E. Gwinne and Pennsylvania Motor Police questioned Wicand yesterday at the hospital. The parolee who President Judge Hiram K. Keller sentenced to pay a fine of $100 and costs last September after he had run down a former sweetheart with his automobile, admitted to Probation Officer Gwinne that a sawed-off shot-gun in his wrecked automobile the other night, was his, but when he was shown two loaded shells that were taken from his pocket, he admitted the gun was his. Gwinne said.

Wicand told Gwinne that he sawed off the gun just recently and "carried it in his car for his own protection." He admitted being in the vicinity of Miss Eleanor Haring's home last Saturday night and again on Tuesday night but when questioned as to why he was there, he replied "I was just riding around." Miss Haring, with whom he once kept company, turned him down last year and on the night of September 17, 1940, he ran into her with his automobile "just to scare her." The girl was badly injured.

Judge Keller placed Wicand on two year's parole last September, and revoked his driver's license. Wicand told Gwinne yesterday that the State had given him permission to apply for his license after a short suspension period and that is how he secured another license. This branch of the case is being investigated.

Wicand also told Gwinne that last Saturday he drove down from Quakertown and attended the movies in Doylestown. Last Tuesday night he said he drove down again and first called on a fellow in Edison that he used to know when he once worked there at a hosiery mill.

After leaving Edison, Wicand told police that he then started toward

CANAL GARDEN CONTEST UNDERWAY IN COUNTY

Plans Look Toward Beautification of Grounds Bordering the Canal

POINTS FOR JUDGING

Sponsored by the Council for the Preservation of Natural Beauty in Pennsylvania, a canal garden contest is now underway.

Mrs. C. C. Zantzinger, president of the council, met this week in Doylestown with representatives of several conservation organizations to formulate plans and rules for participation of property owners along the Delaware River Canal in this contest of friendly rivalry. All plans look toward beautification of grounds bordering the waterway.

Since the State has officially taken over the Delaware River Canal and plans for a State Park, the Delaware Valley Parkway plans are well established, every effort is being put forth to assist in making this area a credit to Bucks county and to the State.

Under the chairmanship of Miss Emily Eley, well-known landscape architect, a committee including Mrs. Irvin M. James, representing the Doylestown Nature Club; William F. Taylor, of the Delaware Valley Protective Association; Mrs. Lalen C. Kirsher, of Philadelphia; Mrs. Charles Platt, of Chestnut Hill; Mrs. Calvin S. Boyer, of Doylestown; Mrs. William Tinsman, Mrs. W. E. McKeache, of Lumberville; Mrs. Ralph McComas, of Spring Valley; Mrs. Arthur W. Warner, of Media, and representatives of local borough and village committees, will endeavor to arrange a contest which may spur citizens of this district to increased activity along these lines.

Under classes for large and small gardens, and taking into consideration well-established and newly-laid-out grounds, awards will be made in the Fall, after judges (one selected from each committee) have made four tours of inspection in May, June, August and late September.

DEFENSE INDUSTRY

Bristol is to again play an important part in the defense of America and for the third time this community is to become one of the links in the chain of defense industries.

The War Department has announced that additional buildings and equipment costing $2,483,919 are to be constructed here at the Fleetwings plant where small parts for airplanes will be made.

This community played its part in World War I when steel cargo carriers were fabricated and this area seethed with war-time activity.

Following the termination of hostilities hundreds of big bombing planes were built at the site of the plant of the Emergency Fleet Corporation and were used in establishing an air force for the United States.

Now on the same plot of ground parts for airplanes for Uncle Sam's armed forces are to be made in huge quantities.

One impressive measure of America's effort for defense and in aid to Britain is the statement of William S. Knudsen that $2,138,000,000 is being expended on new industrial plants. Of this amount $1,600,000,000 represents government plants, $393,000,000 is for 421 privately financed plants, and $171,000,000 is going into plants which Britain has financed and which this government may soon take over.

The government has 302 plants built or building, all of which will be completed by July. These include: aircraft engines, 11; planes, 20; plane parts and accessories, 66; explosives, 11; small arms ammunition, 3; shells, bombs and torpedoes, 18; munitions loading, 9; machine guns, 5; other small arms, 2; artillery, 27; ships, 40; tanks, 5; armor plate and forgings, 12; machine tools, 20; optical instruments, 9; metals, 7; pumps and blowers, 5; ship engines and propulsion machinery, 3; miscellaneous, including chemicals, 10; rehabilitated arsenals, 19.

It is plain from this that the government will have quite an impressive industrial set-up of its own after the war unless such of the plants as can be used in peace-time functions are turned over to private enterprise later.

BEST IN THREE YEARS

Preliminary estimates of probable United States winter wheat production, which crop experts regard as reliable, indicate the largest harvest since 1938.

Forecasts by the men who compile available data from all parts of the grain belt came to about 625,000,000 bushels, as compared to last year's yield of 589,000,000 bushels and the average for the last ten years of 571,000,000.

Incidentally it is to be noted that the heavy crop has not bothered wheat raisers, for the acreage abandonment figures show a decrease of 50 per cent from those of last year.

This might be counted as the best of news, if there was assurance of a market. As it is, the big crop may simply be a problem for the government.

Speaking of oddities in the news, it has just been announced the state of Oklahoma has gone on a cash basis.

The impression grows that those bus strikers in New York City are making Gothamites carry things to pedal extremities.

CHAPTER TWENTY-FIVE

After Kemp and Chris had both left, Sondra turned to her grandfather, "I wonder what ails Kemp, lately."

"So ye've noticed it too? He covers it well, but there's a bottled-up tension underneath. 'Tis as if he watched his heart's treasure slippin' away, and he helpless behind his mask." He darted a sharp look at Sondra, "Ye haven't been quarrelin'—the pair of ye?"

"No, lamb." She hesitated, then rushed on earnestly, "I like Kemp, Dynamite. He's perfectly grand person. But there's something—I don't know why, but I just can't find it in me to really love him."

"Hm-m-m. Me own reactions are similar," the Captain commented dryly. "But—belike the boy's only worried about his fish and Reynall's competition. If that be all, he'll soon be restin' easy. I've promised to break Reynall and take his canary—and I will."

"Dynamite!" Sondra leaned across the table and spoke with sudden sharpness. "I don't like this way of running a business. It isn't—sporting. It—Oh, darling, let's not fight the Reynalls any more. Let's just go ahead and attend to our own business, and have peace."

"Peace! Holy sailor, Sondra, I'm too young a man to be enjoyin' peace. And even if I wasn't—a grinnin' crept into his voice—'there'd be no peace for me so long as the Glory lies disgraced there, wish I had something to eat!"

Sondra shook her head at him and, feeling baffled and beaten, turned to the window. Her grandfather would go his way, and there was nothing she could do about it. She knew he never felt the joy of life so completely as when engaged in battle. But, confound it, why had Fate selected Jean Reynall for him to fight with?

That afternoon Sondra left the village and her depression behind as she turned her speeding cruiser into the riverlike channel that led to the Forest Man's camp in the Place of Trees.

Sondra swung the Spindrift in between two wooded points, and headed for the small boat-landing at the farther end of the U-shaped cove. As she drew near, she could see a boom of peeled timbers fastened by long ropes to a giant cedar not far from the landing. In the little crescent meadow between beach and forest, lay a pile of foundation logs for the new cabin; and near the big cedar, rising above some alders, was a tiny house on stilts—the cache where the Forest Man nor his boat were anywhere in evidence. Should she turn back at once, or wait here a few hours on the chance that he might return?While she hesitated, the decision was taken out of her hands; for the Spindrift gave a sudden lurch, a series of bumps, and came to a stop with mud from her churning propeller boiling up through the green water under her stern.

"Darn it!" cried Sondra, aloud. "I forgot that bar'l!"

She stopped the engine and with an Indian paddle sounded the depth of water alongside. Barely two feet told her the man emerging from the trees was not the blond-bearded logger.

He wore a short yellow slicker, white rubber hip boots, a yellow sou'wester pushed back from his dark, beardless face. And the swashbuckling way he wore them made Sondra dimly certain of the man's identity even before she saw the yellow marsh daisy, big as a sunflower, thrust through the buttonhole of his slicker. Jean Reynall—of all people on the North American continent!

She kept silent, trying to make herself smaller behind the fringe of time, she came on a new harmonica she had bought for Katlein's small brother; and while the Spindrift slowly settled on its side, she blew in and out until she achieved something faintly reminiscent of "Home, Sweet Home."

A large teardrop splashed on her cheek. By the time she got into her jacket and beret, a steady, gentle downpour was silvering the green of the cove.

She considered the possibility of shelter ashore. The only place that offered was the giant cedar above the landing; and to reach it she must wade the narrow channel between the bar and the beach.

"Can do," she decided cheerfully.

She made sure of her boat by slipping a coil of small rope over her arm, and tying one end of it to the Spindrift. Then, with trail-ax thrust through her belt and the Indian paddle as a staff, she set forth.

Half an hour later, she had a campfire going under the spreading cedar, and enough driftwood piled near it to last for hours. Her slacks, tennis shoes and anklets hung drying on a branch above the fire. There was no wind, and not a drop of rain penetrated the heavy green boughs that reached out as far as the creamy blossoms on the elderberry bushes along the creek.

She ignored the endearment and remembered the cut hawser. "No, indeed!" she retorted flippantly.

"As you see, I'm completely in the bosom of my family."

He shook his head slowly and grinned. "What a gal!" Then, matter-of-factly, he placed a hand under each of her arms, lifted her up until her sweater pulled clear of the impaling stub, and dropped her gently back to earth.

She managed a very casual "thank you," and walked to her campfire with all the dignity possible to a bare-legged young woman who has just been plucked off a hook by the most exasperating man of her acquaintance.

She was giving rapt attention to rebuilding the fire, when he came rustling up in his oilskins, slapping the sou'wester against his knee to dislodge the rain. "The Forest Man won't be back here for several days, Sondra—he told me so himself, this morning. It's lucky I popped over for a look at the spruce he's gettin' out for me. The Baltic is waitin' for me in deep water on the other side of the peninsula."

"Indeed! Then don't let me detain you, Captain," she said politely.

He laughed. "I should have said 'waitin' for us.' You'll let me take you back to Sitka, of course, and send someone out after the Spindrift!""On the contrary, I shall wait right here until the Spindrift floats. And I prefer waiting alone—if that can be arranged."

Jean jammed the sou'wester on his head and, without another word, strode back the way he had come.

Her heart sank as she watched the forest shadows close behind him. She hadn't expected him to leave her. She sat looking at the place where he had vanished, almost certain he must reappear there, coming back to her. But minutes passed; then the Baltic's exhaust echoed suddenly against the hills . . . receded . . . gradually faded into silence. He was gone.

That he should coolly abandon her after she had ordered him to do so, seemed somehow a deeper affront than all his former flouting of the O'Mores. "The brute!" she exclaimed, angrily; and was doubly angered to find herself blinking back tears of unreasonable disappointment. "He doesn't care what happens to me. He might at least have argued a little to see if I'd change my mind!"

He wore a short yellow slicker, white rubber hip boots, a yellow sou'wester pushed back from his dark, beardless face. And the swashbuckling way he wore them made Sondra dimly certain of the man's identity even before she saw the yellow marsh daisy, big as a sunflower, thrust through the buttonhole of his slicker. Sondra could turn her head into the cockpit and considered how many hours it would take the tide to ebb and come in again high enough to float her boat. "Stymied—until after midnight," she concluded.

Neill-Thorpe Nuptials Take Place At Washington Crossing

HULMEVILLE, Mar. 29.—At an attractive marriage ceremony in Washington Crossing Methodist Church, last evening at the hour of 7:30, Miss Evelyn Mildred Thorpe, of Main street, was wed to Mr. Robert B. Neill, Jr., Washington Crossing. The former Miss Thorpe is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George N. Thorpe, of Hulmeville; and Mr. Neill is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert B. Neill, Washington Crossing.

The officiating clergyman was the Rev. Samuel E. Arendt, pastor of the Church of the Open Door, Trenton, N. J.

The bride entered the edifice to the music of the wedding march by Lohengrin, played by Miss Clara L. Ilick, pianist. The bride and groom were attended by Miss Ethel Vornhold, of this borough, as bridesmaid; and Mr. Paul Rothermel, Yardley, best man.

A group of appropriate selections was rendered by Miss Ilick prior to the ceremony; and the vocalist for the occasion, Miss Adeline E. Reetz, sang "I Love You Truly," and "Because."

The ushers were Mr. Elwood Kline, Trenton, N. J.; and Mr. Frank Moust, Washington Crossing.

The bride selected for the occasion an ensemble dress of poudre blue, with trim of silk braid in a matching tone; the poudre blue felt hat being an off-the-face model with veil in the same color tone. Her slippers were beige kid, and she wore beige gloves, and a corsage of white roses and sweet-peas.

Miss Vornhold, the bridesmaid, was attired in an ensemble dress of pink tone, with felt hat of the same color. Her corsage was formed of pink carnations.

Forty-five guests were entertained at the Ferry Inn, Washington Crossing, where a collation was served. Upon their return from a short motor trip Mr. and Mrs. Neill will reside in an apartment on Mill street, Bristol.

Today's Quiet Moment

(By Howard L. Zapp, Th. M.)

Master, it is so difficult to believe that "a man's life consisteth not in the abundance of the things which he posseseth." Make us forget our selfish needs and our dissatisfactions with that which Thou hast placed upon our shoulders. We bear up to Thee all those who are in need of food and shelter; all those who are discouraged because of physical needs; all those who are in need of comfort. Teach them the meaning of life, so they may look upon their affliction in another light. Amen.

SELECT BIG THREE LEAGUE ALL STAR BASKETBALL TEAM

Morrisville and Falls High School Place Two On First Team

DI ANGELO GRABS SPOT

Driscoll and Da Bronze Are Unanimous Consensus For Starry Five

By Jack Gill

The stars that twinkled and emblazoned their way to success on the scholastic boards this winter in the "Big Three" Conference were duly honored last night by being awarded posts on the 1941 "All Conference" five. Three quintets were selected by Mike DeRisi, director of physical education at Falls Township High School and Jack Gill, Bristol Courier scholastic sportswriter.

The compliments paid the cute court courting cut-ups of the past season were based almost wholly on form displayed throughout the year. A well balanced ratio of representatives from the three schools were chosen. Each member club placed five men on the three squads. Morrisville and Fallsington, who ran side by side and finished in that order at the end of the race, placed two men apiece on the first unit.

Little Art Driscoll, diminutive Falls forward and definitely the sharpest shooter in local ranks this season, hit a high of over two hundred points during the season. His accurate stabs from the side and set shots from away out were examples of true, honest to goodness, orthodox basketball. Only a junior, the boy is set for another big court campaign next season. He began his career while a freshman at Fallsington under Coach Jim Doheny.

Vince Da Bronze, key man in the Morrisville championship drive, led the league officially in scoring points. His desperate last minute dash of field goals against Fallsington came like a rash following the measles. Due to his fine work Morrisville won the league title.

The Bulldogs didn't startle with flaring flashes of form. Instead they worked together as a closely knit ball club. Never strikingly outstanding, they nevertheless played a consistently sound game with fundamental actions clearly demonstrative. In short, it was a typical John Hoffman athletic team. Aiding immensely in setting up plays for Bresley and DaBronze was little Davey Seltzer. The black haired lad has often been tabbed as one of the smoothest men in district play. He is fast, can cut with agility and is an adept feinter. For those versatile traits he was finally awarded a first team spot.

Chick Di Angelo, Bristol's consistently high scoring forward who has led the Cardinals for two successive years in raking up points, grabbed a first team mention for the first time in his career. Last year his last minute "Peck's Bad Boy" act saw him expelled from school as well as from a placing on the all conference squad. Playing against all kinds of difficult opposition this campaign he was a marked man. Closely watched, he still managed to drop in more than his share of baskets. A 133 point total soared his stock. Featuring for the most part a left handed push shot, the Bristol boy looks forward to another season next year.

Frank Moon, the only exceptionally tall man on the team, took the nod over Hulse, of Morrisville, and Paul Ruby, of Bristol, for the center post. He is another of those Falls performers who hit a two hundred high. His height under the basket aided the Falcons in controlling the rebound. Hulse was a steady Morrisville player, while Ruby came through strong from the Bristol jay-vee ranks as a sophomore to make everyone sit up and take an extra gander or two late in the season.

Joe Bresley, of Morrisville, Bob Monti, and Al Monti, both of Fallsington, honored. Napoli, a smooth ball handler in Fallsington's back court, and Whippet Wallace, the kid who beat Benson for Morrisville, rounded out the five.

BASKETBALL TEAMS ARE TO BE HONORED

MORRISVILLE, Mar. 29—Plans are under way by the Morrisville's Fathers' Association for its annual Athletic Night, when players of the Morrisville Basketball League, sponsored by the association, and the Morrisville High basketball squad will be honored. The program will be held in the high school auditorium on April 9.

Invited guests will include managers and members of the six teams in the basketball league, and awards will be made to the championship club. At present the race is being decided with the Hoopers, Italian-Americans or Hopewell teams in the running for the title. An award will also be made for the loop's high scorer.

Members of the high school varsity and junior varsity teams will be guests also, and the association award to the player on the varsity, with the best foul shooting average will be presented at the meeting.

President William H. Howell has announced the following committees planning the affair: Basketball, Marcus B. Ketcham Jr., chairman; Alvin R. Pratt, Louis Wright and William O'Neill; athletic, J. Wilber Sander, Jenkins, C. Marvin Young and John W. Hoffman; refreshments, William Schofield, chairman; Ray J. Slover, John Anthell and Joseph Bucknum.

LEVY, 625-POUND FREAK, LOSES TO THE ANGEL

TRENTON, N. J., Mar. 29—It took the Swedish Angel just six minutes to dispose of the highly touted Martin (Blimp) Levy, 625-pound freak, in the feature wrestling match at the Arena last night.

The match was originally billed as a two-to-one proposition, but the Swedish Angel and Bobby Bruns flipped a coin to see who would get the first crack at Levy. The Swedish Angel won the toss and brought about the deflation of the Blimp with a right to the chin. Levy fell on his back from the blow and the Swede pounced on him to gain the fall. Bruns waited at the ringside for his chance at the freak, but his services were not required.

Jack Claybourne, flashy South African Negro, won the last match on the card when he pinned Felix Sivokowski, Polish strong boy, after 20 minutes. Claybourne used a dropkick to knock his heavier opponent to the canvas, where he dropped on him to take the duke.

In the fourth match, Jessie Apollo and Hans Schwarz battled to a 30-minute draw in the best contest of the night. Benny Rosen won the third match by pinning Mike Haller after 19 minutes. Rosen's victory was very unpopular with the gallery.

The second match between Count Carl Von Zuppe and Al Norcus provided the fans with several amusing incidents. Norcus won the match after 14 minutes of some of the most hilarious antics seen at the Arena in some time. In the opener, the Italian Angel won from Tony Milano after 17 minutes.

Late in June, a pageant is planned in celebration of the opening of this new park. Floats and barges on the canal will carry singers and musicians in costume, and many other forms of entertainment will make this a memorable day.

Croydon Firemen To Break Ground For New Building

The ceremonies will also include Croydon firemen's opening gun in their "brick" sale to raise the remainder of the $12,000 necessary to erect the proposed building. Plans and specifications for the new hall are now underway and will shortly be sent to the State Department for approval. Actual construction will begin as soon as details can be approved. The "bricks," which will be placed on sale after the ceremonies tomorrow, have been arranged so that they can be pasted on house windows or automobile windshields. They will be sold for a donation of an unspecified amount and the proceeds will go into the general building fund.

Parade committee chairman Louis C. Surrick again sent out a request to all residents along the route of the parade and in all parts of Croydon to display flags and decorate their homes to welcome the visiting marchers to the community. He said today: "We fully expect 5,000 visitors to our town on Sunday and it is up to us who are residents here to show our community spirit and that we are one hundred percent behind our volunteer firemen. We can do our small share by welcoming our visitors with a display of the national colors. Croydon has never had the opportunity to witness within its own environs the program that the firemen have worked so hard to prepare. They deserve the full support of the community in the task they are personal estate of $1500. The widow, and in his anger Drake resigns.

The slogan adopted by the Sponsors' Board and the firemen recently is "Help Us Build for Your Protection."
